London, July 12.-The check the Russians have imposed on Archduke Joseph Ferdinand's army in southern Poland and the additional strain this has placed on the German army to the right has posts poned, military experts here believe. the threatened German offensive its the west, and there is now a possibility that the allies will take the offensive first.

In support of this it is pointed out. that attacks by the German crown prince's army in the Woevre, which the German press announced was the commencement of a general move forward, have ceased.

While military critics still are undecided whether the Russians will make their stand on their present lines or fall back to the Bug river, thus abandoning the fortress of Ivangorod and Warsaw, it is agreed that the counter-attack which they have developed has postponed for a time at least the necessity for further retirement.

There is no confirmation of a reported Italian victory on the Corso plateau, but Rome dispatches say the Italians are making good progress in their work of capturing the mounts around Triest, which they hope to take before commencing and advance on the city itself, thus avoiding a bombardment of the town. largely inhabitated by their compa-

Is Tuberculosis Curable?

VERY once in a while people will ask "Do you really think Consumption can be cured?"; and then, when they are told that thousands of cases all over the world bear witness to the fact of the curability of this disease, they wonder why their several friends and relatives, who died with tuberculosis, were Tuberculosis is curable, but not everyone is cured, and not everyone can be cured. The chief reason why more consumptives are not cured is because they have waited too long before they heeded the warning danger signals of the disease, or because some doctor to whom they went did not recognize this deadly plague. In its early stages, consumption can be cured, and the patient can generally resume his normal life within a period ranging from six months to two years, depending on circumstances. As high a percentage of actual recoveries from tuberculosis may be found in really early cases who follow the right course of treatment as in almost any other infectious disease.

What, then, is the right course of treatment? This article cannot prescribe for individual cases, but it can and will tell what are the essentials in taking the cure for tuberculosis.

First of all, there is a good doctor on whom you can rely and whose advice and inspiration is most valuable to you. He will not give you much medicine, because there isn't any drug or "cure" that he can prescribe that will do more than to relieve some immediate symptoms, such as constipation, cough, headache, etc. If your doctor begins to talk of a "marvelous remedy" which will cure you, it is time you looked for another physician. That man is more than likely a quack and is simply after your money. There is no sure or quick "cure" or remedy for tuberculosis that you can buy at a drugstore or that a doctor can give you.

The second essential in the cure of tuberculosis is fresh air. To the healty person the best tonic is fresh air at work, at play, and during sleep. To the consumptive, however, air is medicine. He must take it in as large doses as he can, the more the better. It may not be easy for one who has been accustomed to indoor work to sleep and live outdoors, but since fresh air is vital, he must accustom himself to being outside all he can. At sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis, patients are out of doors on porches or elsewhere almost all the time. If one is at home, he can with a little ingenuity arrange devices for outdoor sleeping and sitting. The National Juberculosis Association, 105 East 22nd Street, New York, will send free of charge to anyone a booklet entitled: "Directions for Living and Sleeping in the Open Air."

The next essential in the cure of tuberculosis is rest. Like fresh air, rest must be taken as a medicine by the consumptime. The reason for rest is evident, when you stop to think the way the germs of tuberculosis work. As they destroy the tissues of the lungs or other parts of the body, they make a wound or a cavity. This wound, like a cut on your finger, will not heal if it is being opened all the time. To keep the lungs as quiet as possible, rest in bed, or in a reclining chair is absolutely necessary. The dose of rest you take will depend on your doctor's advice. He will tell you when you can get out of bed and when you can exercise and how much. But first and foremost you must learn to rest, in order to give the lungs a chance to heal. Besides a good doctor, fresh air and rest, the cure for tuberculosis requires good, wholesome food. In normal health, food of the right kind is very necessary, but in tuberculosis it is doubly important. Food is the fuel which heats the body and gives it its energy or you might almost say "steam." In tuberculosis one must pay special attention to food, because he has to provide fuel not only for the ordinary functions of the body, but he must prowide an additional supply to meet the waste and damage done by the germs of the disease. This doesn't mean that you must be continually stuffing yourself, for if you do that you will upset your stomach. howels, and liver, and you will counteract all the good the foor might do. Neither does it mean that you must eat just one or two kinds of food, such as milk and eggs, which some people think are a cure for tuberculosis. They are excellent foods for people who can eat and digest them readily, and every consumptive should try to acquire an appetite for them. But meat and potatoes and bread and butter and good vegetables and almost any other nourishing, wholesome food in plenty of variety are needed also. Don't rely on tid-bits and sweets, but stoke your body furnace with food-fuel that will keep it running in the best possible order. Your doctor is the best one to advise on foods.

And, finally, a last essential in the cure of tuberculosis may be summed up in these words: "Don't worry." Keep a hopeful state of mind. If you give up and say "It's no use," you will never get well, no matter how patiently you follow the other essentials of a cure. Getting well depends for the most part on you. Backbone, hopefulness and courage will do more for you than all the doctors in the world.

Just a word as to where to take the cure. If you can go to a sanatorium, do so. There are not enough sanatoria for everyone, however. So you may have to stay at home and fight alone. Remember, tuberculosis can be cured if you take it in time and do

CARING FOR FARM POULTRY

Abundant Supply of Pure Water, Grit and Charcoal Should Be Provided for Flock in Summer.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.) During summer we should provide an abundance of pure water, grit and charcoal for the farm flock. Keep the houses cool at night and well ventilated at all times when the fowls are kept inside. Wheat, oats and a mash feed once a day makes an excellent supply of feed during the warm weather.

Feed no musty and fermented feed. A sour mash is highly injurious. Sour milk may be used to moisten the mash but no more should be mixed at one time than the fowls will clean up at one feeding.

Allow no feeds to accumulate in the feed troughs. Feather eating among hens is usually prevalent during summer. In some cases the feathers are almost stripped from the neck of the birds and the fiesh is lacerated with the beaks and burned by the sun.

This habit is invariably caused by lack of proper substance in the feed. Prevention is better than cure, and perfect health and vitality among the flock should do this.

Old hens intended for the market should always be sold early before they begin to moult or else you will be compelled to feed them three or four months before they have completed a new set of plumage and look fit to be sold as market poultry.

I have found nothing better than to feed them sparingly with nitrogenous feeds until about the first week in September and follow this with an abundance of wholesome stimulating feeds to encourage the growth of

That Luck Signal is Expressing Doubt in God.

Every time a person "taps on wood" to counteract the seeming poastfulness of having declared that he hasn't "had a sick day this year" or some such piece of good fortune, he is admitting that his God is no better than those of the heathen, of an envious and quarrelsome disposition, who dislike to see human beings at all exuberant over their luck, according to the Rev. Charles Wood, who preached last night on "Temporary and Permanent Peace," at the exhorting the congregation to make Advertisement peace with God and to believe in him as a kind Father.

Speaking of peace in Europe, Doctor Wood said:

"Humanity has needlessly lost faith in peace conferences, culture, and even Christianity in some cases, though it was only the lack of faith that allowed the breaking out of hostilities. Many wonder if war may not become a permanent condition in the world. This is palpably impossible. It is impossible to reckon out the duration of the war by comparing statistics of natural resources of the countries engaged and their periods of exhaustion, but it is easy to see that war, being an abnormal condition, is bound to end in time, like a fire or plague.

"However, peace will be nothing but an armed truce until humanitarian diplomats, if we can join those two words, come together with the idea of an entirely equable adjustment, and with a Christian spirit." -Washington Post.

VICTORY GOES TO PLODDER

"Exceptional" Youngsters Nearly Al ways Cease to Be Prodigies When They Grow Up.

Have you ever noticed how few 'smart" people amount to anything? The "slick" individuals you meet-they do not seem to get anywhere. The fakers are the "smartest" people on earth, but you have never known one to get very far on the road to success.

Take the "smart" girl. She seems to know everything on earth. She dresses a little louder than other girls. She always manages to wear something that is "chic." She has the boys hanging around her in groups. She talks in terms that the plainer girl cannot understand; but later on in life she will be found putting up a terrific fight against time while the girl who was not nearly so smart is occupying a position of dignity and joy at the head of a sensible home.

And as for the smart boy-the one who "gets by" in a manner the other boys cannot understand, and who may for the time being be envied by the other boys because of his foppish manners-he doesn't become the head of a prosperous business. It is the plodder that seems to get there in the end -the boy who doesn't "catch on" quite so rapidly as the smart boy. Probably not 1 per cent of the successful men in the world today gave any evidence of having great ability when they were "kids." The prodigies do not make good. The "exceptional" youngster in school seldom conquers after he has entered real life; but the plain fellow of common sense, slow to learn, slow to become enthused, slow to make companions and slow to give them up-the fellow who sticks to a job until it is finished, that is the fellow who in after life rules and regulates the affairs of this little green ball .- Dayton News.

DRAWBACKS TO NEW IDEA

Cutting Down of Hours of Sleep Will Be Sure to Meet With Much Opposition.

A specialist who has pursued his studies with devotion, announces that sleep is a mere habit of the human mind and body that may be thrown off completely through gradual relinquishment. It is his view that the average man may add 20 years to his conscious existence by disposing of his sleep habit. The cult has progressed to the extent that many men are now in a way to eliminate their hours of repose, with some show of success, but there is vast complaint from their families during the preliminary stages of the cure. The man who has been sleeping eight hours is not enabled to shade the interval of rest to four hours without seriously disturbing his household. One who retires at midnight and arises at four o'clock in the morning awakens other inmates of his home, both on retiring and arising. There is some inherent defect in human nature that leads one to go blundering about a house, knocking over chairs and shaking down the furnace, when he should be preserving a deep silence. For this reason the home treatment of the sleep habit is not likely to be popular. What should be done, for the protection of normal humans, is to hive the sleephabit patients in barracks where they disturbing others. To curious stran gers the barracks would be a show place, where the lights would be always shining like beacons and where the activities of life might proceed as at noon. There is some demur to the sleep treatment for the reason that it adds one meal a day to the requirements of the patient-a requirement that is practically prohibitive to many.

Stomach Ache.

Segmentary neurosis is the predisposing cause of disease belonging to the class of the paroxysmal spasmodic disorders associated with the musculature of the alimentary canal. In members of this class seizures occur in connection with food taking and gastro-oesophageal hypertonus; they also occur from mental and emotion al excitement, and from muscular ef fort; in them both visceral and parietal layers of muscles are engaged in spasm. Consequently they resemble the anginal seizure in other features besides that of predisposing cause. A neurosis attended by intercostal by peralgesia ensues when dendritic fibers belonging to the affected cen ter traverse pressure zones of hyper plasias, aneurisms, new growths and pericardial and pleuritic adhesions. Hence these diseases, as well as gastric disorders, may be regarded as potential remote causes of anginal pains and seizures.-H. Walter Verdun in the Lancet.

Odd Fishes.

It is said that at one time the Icelanders taught tame bears to jump into the sea and catch seals. In China birds do equally well, for at a signal they dive into the lakes and bring up large fish grasped in their bills. In Greece the fishermen use branches of pine steeped in pitch and lighted; the inhabitants of Amorgos used cypressleaved cedar, which served, when lighted, as a ture; and the Chinese fish in the night with white-painted boards placed in a manner to reflect the rays of the moon upon the water. These attract the fish to the boat, when the men cast a large net and seldom fail to draw out considerable quantities. Anchovies are fished for in a similar man-

H. B. M. A. Holds Meeting Friday Night---Resolutions of Respect.

The first meeting of the H. B. M. A. since the new officers were elected, was held Friday night with 22 members present. Later the Directors, 10 of the 12 present, held a meeting presided over by President Jas. O. Cook, and re-elected Secretary Ino. W. Richards for a term of one year.

The point was raised that the position of second vice president, created about three years ago, was not legally created, and Mr. T. C. Underwood, who had been chosen to the office by the members in the election last week, accepted the decision without protest. The office was filled in 1913 by M. C. Forbes and in 1914 by Geo. D. Dalton, the principal duties being presiding officer at directory meetings and other duties in connection with auditing bills. The point raised and sustained by President Cook was that the amendment passed creating the office received less than two-thirds of the votes cast. At the time it was declared passed.

HENDRICK'S PLACE

He Held It Only Long Enough to Make Sure of a Better.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Evelyn Post acknowledged the respectful greeting of the tall, straight ng man in the doorway. Henirick did not look the part of chauffour—not exactly; he was altogether too handsome, too self-possessed, with an air of authority that did not rest -not exactly; he was altogether well on a servant. But his skill in driving compensated for these other faults. He had remained in the employ of Evelyn's mother for three months and all during that time he was positive of that; because he coked disconcertingly like men of her own class. It was puzzling and not at all desirable in a menial. There even were times when she found herself addressing him on terms of equalty. Of course, she always followed th a lapse by unusual haughtiness. Altogether the advice of Hendrick was rather disquieting to his young

Now he stood, quietly attentive, waiting for his morning orders.

"Get the morning mail, Hendrick," said Mrs. Post; "return and drive Miss Post over to Mill Hill." "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Post, but the river is rising and the Mill Hill bridge is unsafe," said Hendrick. "Then go around the other waythe long road," returned Mrs. Post.

Hendrick bowed and disappeared. At eleven o'clock Hendrick returned with the car and announced that the long bridge was down in the flood and that the upper bridge could not long hold up against the waters pouring from the swollen creeks which were tributary to the river.

Evelyn paused with one foot on the step of the car.

"I'm sure it cannot be so bad," she aid carelessly. "You will drive over, Hendrick; Mrs. Beatty's please." Hendrick hesitated, almost as if he were going to demur; then he shrugged his shapely shoulders, climbed to his seat and started the river, Miss Post?" he asked. Evelyn glanced indifferently at the cidge in the distance. "Certainly-rive on Hendrick." The bridge isn't safe, Miss Post," objected Hendrick, with a note of sternness in his voice. "So you said before," returned

Evelyn coldly. "Please drive on. I ised Mrs. Beatty I would be there at twelve o'clock, and it is now half past the hour." The car glided down the hill until the front tires touched the timbers of the bridge. Evelyn gianced at the river boiling between its narrow banks. She could see that it was rising rapidly, and the wooden planks of the bridge were wet where the waters had splashed up between them. The frail structure trembled at the first impact of the heavy car.

Hendrick got down and came to the tonneau, one gauntleted hand resting on the door.

"It is unsafe to take the car across the bridge, Miss Post," said the chauffeur patiently; "it is more than unsafe —it is foolbardy. If you will walk across. I will try and take the car over and then pick you up on the other side." He opened the door.

"If you are afraid, Hendrick, I will drive the car myself," said Evelyn, with wonderful self-control. Hendrick would be discharged the instant they ached home—she would see about

"If you are afraid, Hendrick-Evelyn was repeating when the chauffeur leaned forward, deftly snatched her from the seat and ran across the dge, holding her in his strong arms if she had been a baby. She could teel his heart pounding beneath her hand. She hated him!

The bridge swayed a little under their united weight. They reached the other side and Hendrick dropped his burden and ran back to the car. He leaped to his seat and started the machine across the bridge. Evelyn, hating him with all her heart, saw the bridge quiver under the weight of the big car. She longed to cry out and send him back, but pride stilled the words on her lips. The structure sagged when the car reached the middle. There was a rending crash of timbers, and then a horrible thud from the river beneath. She saw the water boiling up through the jagged remains of the old bridge. The car and its driver had disap-

Half mad with terror and remorse, the girl ran to the edge of the bank and looked for Hendrick. The car was visible, half balanced on the big stones beneath the bridge. But the broken timbers of the bridge were heaped over it so that she could see

She fancied that some of the planks around the car moved; then a gloved hand was visible, then a shoulder, and at last Hendrick's pale face looking up at her from the reaped debris.

"Go back!" he ordered hoarsely. For answer Evelyn leaned over the abyss of boiling foam and stretched out a hand. "Let me help you—what an I do?" she called.

Gaining the river bank, she tossed her long cloak aside, sped up the road to the top of Mill Hill, and stumbled through the gate just as Mrs. Beatty came down the drive in her smart runabout.

There were hurried exclamations and questions, which Evelyn answered with what calmness she could muster. Then Alice Beatty issued a few orders and in ten minutes several men were racing down the long hill to the broken bridge. Mrs. Beatty and Evelyn followed in the runabout.

When they reached the bridge it was to find the flood tearing at the splintered boards which had imprisoned Hendrick in the fallen motor car. The Beatty servants were quick-witted and trained to meet emergencies. Two of them tossed down a noosed rope to the chauffeur, who slipped it under his arms. Then, by main force they pulled.

When Hendrick reached the river ank he promptly lost consciousness. Bigley, the gardener, made a hasty examination and spoke to his mistress.

"He's hurt his head, I think, ma'am. We better be taking him up to the house in the car."

Evelyn turned her head that she might not see Hendrick's still, white face, stern even in its unconsciousness. Mrs. Beatty leaned forward eagerly, pressed back the heavy locks of brown hair and screamed:

"Why it's Teddy! Evelyn, I thought you said it was your new chauffeur!" "Why it is-Hendrick-he has only At the foot of the slope that led een with us a few months. If it isn't Hendrick-who is it, Alice?" "My cousin, Teddy Hendrickson," sobbed Mrs. Beatty, holding Hendrick's strong hand in both of hers 'He speculated and lost every penny he had. Father offered to help him get back on his feet again, but he refused-said he'd find some way out all by himself-he's the pluckiest boy alive! Then Teddy disappeared and and low ever since."

Evelyn was crying bitterly as they walked back up the hill.

It was several hours afterward, when the late chauffeur was lying with bandaged head in the best bedroom of the Beatty home, that Evelyn was admitted to see him. Mrs. Beatty had personally borne her cousin's request to see Miss Post.

The room was bathed in the late afternoon sunlight. Teddy Hendrickson was lying with his dark eyes fixed on the door. A glad look came into his face when Evelyn entered.

For a long while they looked at each other. Then the girl's glance wavered and fell beneath his ardent glance. "I'm sorry-I cannot tell you how sorry I am to have been the cause of your injuries. It was all my silly willfulness, and I hope you will forgive

"Forgive-you?" he breathed quick-"You must have known it was a privilege to serve you."

"And I am sorry—sorry that I said that I said you did not know your place-I didn't understand that it was your better judgment and your cour age in rising above your situation that prompted your defiance of my orders.'

She held out her hand timidly and Hendrickson covered it in a warm clasp. His dark eyes looked into her blue ones with a strange significance. "I know the place I want to fill, Miss Post," he said quietly, "and some day I will gain it."

Italy and Civilization.

The history of Italy is, with the exception of Grece, the most illustrious in the world. In art, especially painting and sculpture, Italy stands preeminent. In literature her place is, to say the least, in the front rank. In science, she has borne a conspicuous position, and in music her place is easily second, if not first. In fine, Italia's story is more brilliant than that of any other country except Greece, and to Greece she is a very close second.

MEETS WIFE THOUGHT DEAD AFTER 16 YEARS.

Andrew Ritter Was Putting Flowers on Her "Grave" In a Cemetery.

New York, July 9.-While Mrs. Louisa Singer, of East Eighty-fifth street, was placing flowers on the grave of a friend in the Lutheran cemetery, Brooklyn, she saw a man near her also placing flowers on a grave. To her great amszement she recognized him as Andrew G. Ritter, who had married her sister in 1895. and who she thought was dead.

Mrs. Singer, without speaking to Ritter, who had not recognized her, followed him to 439 Central Avenue, Brooklyn. Then she told her sister, who had had not seen Ritter since 1899. The sister promptly got a warrant for the arrest of the long-vanished husband. Ritter, who had married a second Stime, confronted his former wife in the domestic relation court, and received the shock of his life, as he thought his first wife had died years ago.

Never has Magistrate Cornell witnessed a more dramatic scene than the one that was enacted in his court when Mrs. Ritter No. 1, accompanied by her two grown daughters, who had never seen their father since babyhood, gazed into the face of the man she married in 1895,

There were explanations all around. Ritter seemed unable to realize that his first wife actually stood before him. He had not seen or heard from her since they separated in 1899. In 1905 he married Miss Elizabeth Shields, and they have lived very happily together since that time and have two daughters.

Mrs. Ritter No. 2 was just as surprised as her husband to learn that he had a living wife, but she is perfectly loyal to her husband, and says that she will never give him up.

Ritter was introduced by wife No. 1 to his two grown daughters. They are Mrs. Elizabeth O'Keefe, nineteen years old, of 1422 Avenue A. and Mrs. Anna Holoubek, eighteen years old, of 408 East Seventy-first street. They declared this was the first time they ever remembered to have met it. their father.

Magistrate Cornell questioned al the parties closely and was convinced that Ritter was sincere in believing his first wife to be dead before marrying a second time. There had been some talk of prosecuting Ritter on a bigamy charge, but Assistant Corporation Counsel Carr said that as sixteen years had elapsed since Ritter last saw his wife, and as he had heard nothing from her in all father has been looking for him high that time, he was justified in assuming that she was dead.

After pondering over the queer nell finally ordered Ritter to pay the a carcass. sum of $4 a week to wife No. 1 for a period of one year.

The complete surrender of German forces in the German southwest Africa to Gen. Botha, commander of the forces of the Union of South Africa; the French advance in the Vosges of 700 yards, on a front of 600 yards, and the capture there of upwards of 300 unwounded Germans. and the stand being made by the Russians in Southern Poland against the Austro-German forces give British military critics subject for comment on what they term "the turn of the tide" in the war. It is expected that a territory of some 300,000 square miles will be annexed to the dominion of South Africa. General Botha already has begun to send the citizen army home and a force now will be sent to assist the mother country in Europe.

MOTHBALLS A WAR LUXURY

Price of Pungent Marbles Has Been Quadrupled Since Hostilities Began.

The war has affected various household and commercial necessities in the past nine months, but who for an instant thought that the common mothball would become a luxurv? Such is the case, however, and the housewife is just beginning to realize that there is not only a dearth in the supply, but that they have increased almost four times in price. And right in the middle of housecleaning period and packing away of the winter furs and garments she is learning it to her dismay. To the pawnbroker and storage house proprietor this is also unwelcome news.

Before the war mothballs were as cheap as clothespins. Then it was that Mrs. Homebody could run around to the corner drug store about this time of the year and buy six pounds for a quarter. Now that amount will buy her but a little more than a pound of the pungent crystallized balls.

All this, wholesale dealers in pharmacists' supplies say, is due to the war, and they explain it in this manner: Before the war England sent to this country most of the naphthalene, of which mothballs are made. Since last August not a shipment has been made.

The Trading Stamp Nuisance

Wnat John Wanamaker does not now about merchandising nobody knows. It is everywhere recognized that there is no more successful retail merchant in this country than he, and it is equally recognized that his success is built upon the sterling straightforward principles which must underlie real and enduring success in business, success which means the legitimate interest of both the eller a: d buyer. What he has to say, therefore, about the modern nuisance of trading stamps is wort attention. He thus writes to the Ed tor and Publisher:

"Over fifty active years of merchandising experience-years during which I have studied and thought ou almost every kind of plan and proposition to serve the public and increase my business with it-have convinced me that trading stamps or premium schemes of any kind whatsoever have no legitimate place in the distribution of merchandise.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so so much at so low a price.

The year 1914 has been the most extraordinary in the history of modern times. It has witnessed the outbreak of the great European war, a struggle so titantic that it makes all others look small.

You live in momentous times, and you should not miss any of the tremendous events that are occurring. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-a-Week edition of the New York World. Moreover, a year's subscription to it will take you far into our next Presidential campaign.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only 1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for

WELCOME THAT MEANT MUCH

Newcomers in Neighborhood Never Likely to Forget Kindness of Mrs. Estabrooks.

"'I am one of your new neighbors-Mrs. Estabrooks,' said a cheerful voice at our door in the very middle of our first attempt at moving. 'No, 1 can't come in. I just brought you a bit of lunch, knowing you would be too busy to fix any. Please call on me-just next door-if I can be of any help.

"My husband and I glanced at that tray with its two bowls of hot soup and steaming pot of coffee, and then at each other in dumb surprise

"We had just reached that dreadful place, and the things wanted first are underneath the things wanted lastthat awful moment when a sense of helplessness, weakness and homesick ness combined swoops down upon you

"We had not realized that we were hungry and physically exhausted; but after sitting down at an improvised table, and sampling that delicious soup and drinking the stimulating coffee, we suddenly knew what had been the matter with us. Courage returned. "Blessings on our neighbor!" cried

"'Yes.' I answered. 'She's the job liest caller I ever received. She has taught me how to introduce yourself to new neighbors and win their everlasting gratitude. Whatever happens in this neighborhood I'll stand by Mrs Estabrooks-see if I don't!" "-Wom an's Home Companion.

EXPLAINING DREAD OF DEATH

Suspension of All Familiar Activities Is Something the Mind Instinctively Shrinks From.

It is the variety of experience which makes life interesting-toil and rest pain and relief, hope and satisfaction danger and security. If we once re move the idea of vicissitude from life, it all becomes an indolent and unin spiring affair.

It is the process of change which is delightful-the finding out what we can do and what we cannot-going from ignorance to knowledge, from clumsiness to skill. Even our relations with those whom we love are all bound up with the discoveries we make about them, and the degree in which we can help them and affect them.

What the mind instinctively dislikes is stationariness; and an existence in which there was nothing to escape from, nothing more to hope for, to learn, to desire, would be frankly unendurable.

The reason why we dread death is because it seems to be a suspension of all our familiar activities. It would be terrible to have nothing but memory to depend upon.

The only use of memory is that it ditions if they are dull, and it is only too true that the recollection in sorrow of happy things is torture of the worst kind.

THOUGHT HIM FELLOW GUEST

Doctor's Appearance Misled Traveling Man Who Had Put in a Bad Night.

In a Nebraska town there was once a hotel that all traveling salesmen avoided except when they couldn't. There was no heating system, the only warmth in the house being supplied by a small stove in the office. One howling night, when the wind was making about thirty knots per hour and the mercury was 20 below zero, a traveling man shivered beneath the insufficient bedclothes in his drafty room until about 3 a. m. Unable to stand it any longer, though he dreaded to leave the bed, he leaped out, seized his clothes and ran to the office. There he shuddered into his garments, and then began building up the fire.

The fire-poking aroused the landlord, who came out and said: "What're you gettin' up this time o' night fer? You left a call fer six-thirty."

"What did I get up for?" shouted the traveling man, "I couldn't stay in bed any longer in that room of mine! I was freezing!"

The landlord defended his hostelry and the traveling man assailed it in a regular quarrel.

During the disagreement an old doctor of the town, who had been out in the inclement night and was almost frozen, saw the light in the hotel office and came in. The old man's long whiskers were covered with frost and festooned with enormous icicles. As the traveling man turned from his quarrel and saw the old man's condition and the pendant ice, he exclaimed: "Heavens, man! Which room did you have?"-Judge.

MEN WHO DO GREAT THINGS

In the Main Are Those Who Consistently and Persistently Press Forward in Life.

"The race is not always to the swift." It is surely a strange philosophy that substitutes anything for fast running as a qualification for winning a foot race. But it was a wise man who said that, and it is probably true, even though there are times when we scorn and despise such a doctrine. They used to speak of David Livingstone as "the man who would go on." And it described him very accurately. Like many another man there were a number of good stopping places in his life, but he never seemed to see them. But men make name and enduring fame for themselves just because they cannot see stopping places, but keep their eyes fixed on the great luring road ahead of them. It is the man who will go on who is going to win the goal, no matter what kind of goal it may be. The pace of the running makes very difference. The theologians used to talk about the perseverance of the saints, and it was not a bad subject to talk about, just as perseverance is not a bad quality for a saint to have. Probably there are not very many saints made without its help. That is probably one of the great reasons why we have so few saints.

Why Does a Baby Smile?

An interesting mental process with physical manifestations which is found in every healthy baby is smiling. It rkahly early one too, and a child of a month old will often show a distinctly pleased smile when its litdies away again with equal celerity. and by the time the first three months are past is accompanied often enough

But laughing comes later, often much later, and many children never really laugh until they are a year old, or even more. It is, indeed, very rare to hear laughter before the first six months are accomplished, and when it is heard it should be regarded as a symptom of unusual intelligence, maybe gratifying to a mother's pride, but most certainly not to be excited or provoked.

Relics of Old Persia.

Shuster, the old capital of Persia, is one of Iran's wonder cities. In the dawn of Persian civilization it took a leading part. On the bank of the only navigable river the country can boast, the city gets its name from the famous ruler, Shapur, who built great irrigation dams and a noble bridge across the Kurun, now wrongly credited to the Emperor Valerian. Sixteen hundred years have left the great bridge, a quarter of a mile in length, with yawning gaps, but the water of the river runs today through the channels and tunnels made to fertilize a land that had not yet been overrun by the Arabic barbarians, who destroyed the culture of Persia.

The Green-Eyed Monster.

A dreadful beast is jealousy. Someimes it has a beautiful look, a dazzling kind of fascination, like some glittering reptile. This is because it is sometimes associated with quite another idea-the idea of love. Of course, jealousy and love have nothing to do with each other. Love is a wish to give. Jealousy is the lowest form of selfishness. So that when she plays with jealousy she is tempting a poisonous bite from the deadly serpent.

She may think just to tease the serpent. But when it is aroused the consequences are often sad enough. One cip from the serpent has been known to kill love.

En Passant.

(Times.)

Mr. Vansant having decreed that the Democrats of Kentucky are not to be informed as to what their party nominees stand for until after the nominations have been made, interest in the campaign for the nominations is, as might be expected, largely confined to the candidates themselves. Later on, when the party discovers whether it is cal'ed on to follow a dry leader on a wet platform or a wet leader on a dry, or whether, by good fortune rather than deserving, platform and candidate are alike arid or humid, interest may revive. In the meantime, the following editorial from the Elizabethtown News offers some political history and records some observations as to Kentuckians in general and candidates in particular that might be read with profit by the gods of the Democratic shell game now in progress:

"In nearly every campaign for twenty years Kentucky has put foolish politics of some kind ahead of the more important and vital matters which affect the material interests of the State.

"For ten or twelve years it was Goebelism; 'who killed Goebel?' and why the Republican party was responsible for the assassination of Goebel. The Democrats were in all that time calling the Republicans a lot of murderers and, in turn, the Republicans were calling the Democratic a lot of election thieves and
